Your thought is a tree rooted deep in the soil of tradition and whose branches grow in the power of continuity.

Mine is the thought of him who is lost in his own country, of the alien in his own nation, of the solitary among his kinfolk and friends.

Your thought makes you

aspire to titles and office.

My thought speaks softly in my ears, "Be clean in body and spirit even if you have nowhere to lay your head."

Your thought is a fortress that neither gale nor the lightning can shake.

My thought is new, and it tests me and I test it morn and eve.

Richard confesses that he has wasted his wealth in "too great a court," and is "enfeebled" [his] royal realm" (II. iv. 44-45). The "mouthpiece of orthodox political wisdom" upon this abuse of the nature of rule that Richard is now leased out. . . . Like to a fencible of public farm" (II. i. 59-60); and to Richard, within whose crown "a thousand flatterers sit," he declares, "Landlord of England art thou now, not king. Thy state of law is but a slave to the law."

Richard rules, then, like Aquinas' tyrant, perverting the state from its natural form as a commonwealth of free men; its laws are administered not for his subjects' good, but to benefit himself. Treating the kingdom as a possession, he has sold those rights in it which are by the nature of society a public trust, and "The Earl of Wiltshire hath the realm in farm" (II. i. 256).

"Since a tyrant," says Aquinas, "despising the common good, seeks his private interest, it follows that he will oppress his subjects in different ways according as he is dominated by different passions to acquire certain goods. The one who is enthralled by the passion of cupidity seizes the goods of his subjects." Upon Gaunt's death, Richard illegally seizes the patrimony of Bolinbroke. York protests:

Take Hereford's rights away, and take from him
His charters and his customary rights;
Let not tomorrow then ensue today;
But first let me myself, for how art thou a king
But by fair sequence and succession?

Richard's willful course violates hereditary and contractual rights which rest upon the natural law of society. After further recital of the tyrannical injustices of the "most degenerate king," Richard's nobles turn to Bolinbroke, who comes home to defend the rights of the right Hereford can justly claim "I am a duke, and I challenge law" (II. iii. 133-34); "I come to mine own" (II. iii. 196 and III. iii. 149), and "I am my cousin king be King of England. It must be so, for I am Duke of Lancaster" (II. iii. 123-24). York, a "time-honoured" exemplar of political rectitude, has earlier refused to punish the murder of his brother Gloucester, since it had been committed by Prince of God's substitute, / His deputy appointed in His place. Northumberland has possibly before the seizure of the Lancastrian estates, heard news of Bolinbroke's return, for he speaks of it in the scene which sees Gaunt's death and the king's announcement of his intent. This is a bit more difficult to accept as a dramatic foreshadowing, significant in an overliteral reading, than, for instance, the inevitable inconsistencies of Othello's doubt.

Bolinbroke's return is inevitable as he faces the deposition, which, a terrible secret in the state, is the sacredness of royalty (quite another business, "define that"). Once the cause is submitted to any process of law, for how- ever good a cause, it becomes an object of ambition, and this perverts the very nature of the civil body. Deposition produces unrest, strife, and deposition, the political order passing into the keeping of wolves rather than shepherds. Even as justice departs, York is driven to tyranny, like Henry. In order to escape domination by those whose power has advanced him, and in order to free himself from partisans of the old regime, York's horror at the attempt "to find out right with wrong," his insistence that "the quarrel is God's," his

Your thought concerns the skilled, the artist, the intellectual, the philosopher, the priest.

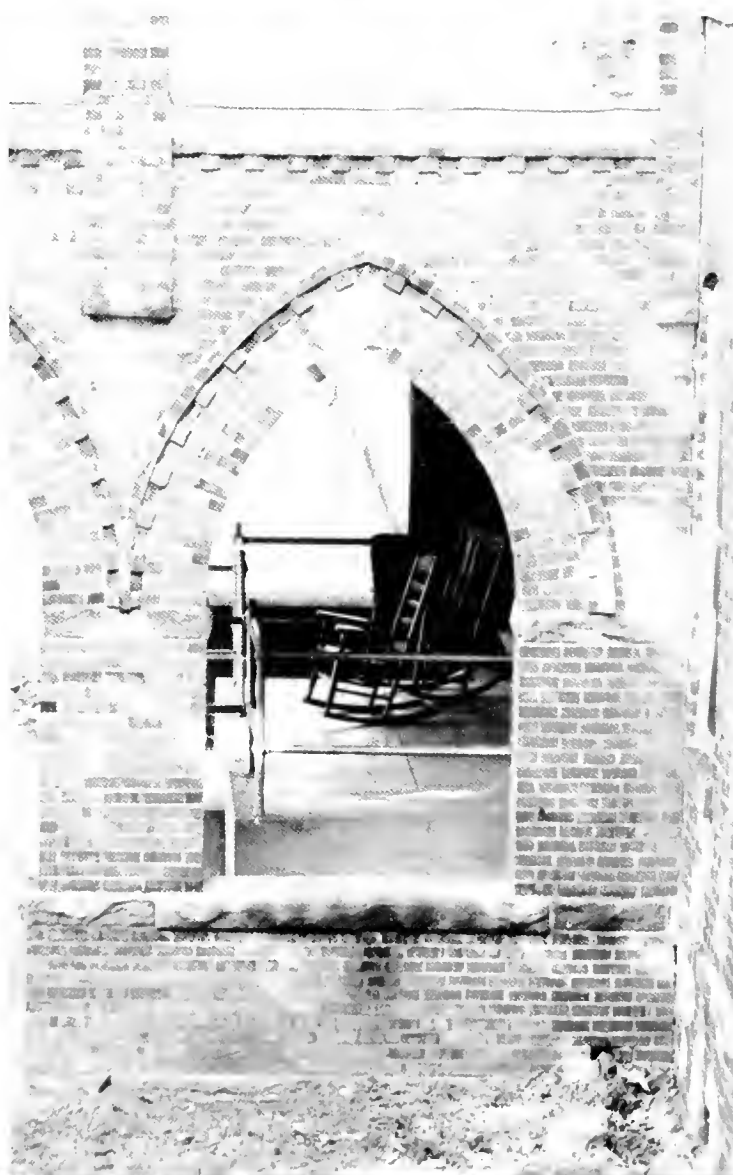

Mine speaks of the loving and the affectionate, the sincere, the honest, the forthright, the kindly and the martyr.

Empty chairs reflect the thoughts of men of yesterday, that will live on through, tomorrow.

But mine asserts that power lies in reason, resolution, and truth . . .

No matter how long the tyrant endures, he will be the loser in the end.

So Why Study?

FACULTY

DR. GEORGE HERNDL:
The means of reviving a
language lies in the heart of the poet and upon his lips and between his fingers.

FR. JOHN OETGEN: The
spiritual man is he who has experienced all earthly things and is in revolt against them.

MRS. JEAN MOORE: Poetry is a flash of lighting; it becomes mere composition when it is an arrangement of words.

FR. MATTHEW MCSORLEY: Man's value is in the few things he creates and not in the many possessions he amasses.

BR. ROBERT EARLY: What truly hurts is our conscience that aches when we oppose it, and dies when we betray it.

HISTORY

FR. ANSELM BIGGS: They say if one understands himself, he understands all people. But I say to you, when one loves people, he learns something about himself.

FR. RAPHAEL BRIDGE: The most useful among the people is he who is distant from the people.

MR. DONALD CRESSWELL: The marching ages trample man's works; but they do not obliterate his dreams, nor weaken his creative impulses

FR. LAWRENCE WILLIS: God made our bodies temples for our souls, and they should be kept strong and clean to be worthy of the deity that occupies them.

MR. FRANK MURRAY: History does not repeat itself except in the minds of those who do not know history.

DR. ROBERT SHELTON: Man merely discovers; he never
can and never will invent.

MR. TERRY TOMAZIC: You
progress not through improving what has been done, but reaching toward what has yet to be done.

MODERN LANGUAGES

MADAME RAHIER: The art of the French is in finesse.

FR. LAWRENCE WILLIS: Irregularity comes either from madness or from ingenuity.

MR. JACK HANAHAN: Languages, governments, and religions are formed from the golden dust that rises from both sides of the road on which man's magnificent life proceeds.

POLITICAL SCIENCE

MR. ROBERT JONES: The writer who draws his material from a book is like one who borrows money only to lend it.

MR. JAMES TOBIN: My thought asserts that power lies in reason, resolution and truth.

MR. PAT GALLAGHER: The virtue of some of the rich is that they teach us to despise wealth.

MR. ROBT. McDONNELL:
Your thought describes laws,
courts, judges, punishments.

MR. ROBERT ADAMS:
Mine explains that when man
makes a law, he either violates
it or obeys it.

BUSINESS & ECONOMICS

DR. GILBERT FARLEY: Prosperity comes through two things: exploitation of the earth and distribution of its product.

MR. MICHAEL KENNY: The truth that needs proof is only half-true.

MRS. ISABELLE HART: Hard is life for him who desires an end but who lives on for the sake of his beloved ones.

MR. STANLEY DUDKO: Of life's two chief prizes, beauty and truth, I found the first in a loving heart and the second in a laborer's hand.

THE SCIENCES

DR. W. HARTFORD: Science and religion are in full accord, but science and faith are in complete discord.

DR. JUAN CELECIA: In education the life of the mind proceeds gradually from scientific experiments to intellectual theories, to spiritual feeling, and then to God.

FR. BERTRAND PATTISON: The art of the English is in analysis and self-righteousness.

MRS. DAVID A. YONDERS: Even the laws of Life obey Life's laws.

MR. JACK HANAHAN: The most solid stone in the structure is the lowest one in the foundation.

FR. PETER STRAGAND:
The strong grows in solitude
where the weak withers away.

FR. ARTHUR PENDLETON:
The chemist can extract from
his heart's elements compassion,
respect, longing, patience, regret, surprise and forgiveness
and compound them into one,
can create that atom which is called LOVE.

FR. ANTHONY: We are all practical in our own interest and idealists when it concerns others.

THEOLOGY

FR. JAMES SOLARI: Faith is a knowledge within the heart, beyond the reach of proof.

FR. LAWRENCE WILLIS: Faith perceives Truth sooner than Experience can.

PHILOSOPHY

ABBOT WALTER COGGIN: Keep me from the wisdom that does not weep, and the philosophy that does not laugh, and the pride that does not bow its head before a child.

DR. ANTHONY CAMELE: I never speak without error for my thoughts come from the world of abstraction and my statements from the world of reference.

ACCOUNTING

MR. J. P. SMITH: Examine your yesterday's ledger and you will find that you are still indebted to people and to life.

FR. MARTIN HAYES: God has created your spirits with wings to fly in the spacious firmament of Love and Freedom.

FINE ARTS

FR. KENNETH GEYER: Art is a step in the known toward the unknown.

PSYCHOLOGY

MR. WARREN CLARK: Strange that virtue in me brings me nothing but harm...

ATHLETICS

MR. BOBBY HUSSEY: As one's gifts increase, his friends decrease.

MR. STANLEY DUDKO:

MR. MICHAEL REIDY: We may change with the seasons, but the seasons will not change us.

MR. JIM GIERMANSKI: We are all warriors in the battle of Life, but some lead and others follow.
